August 2022

Cari amici,

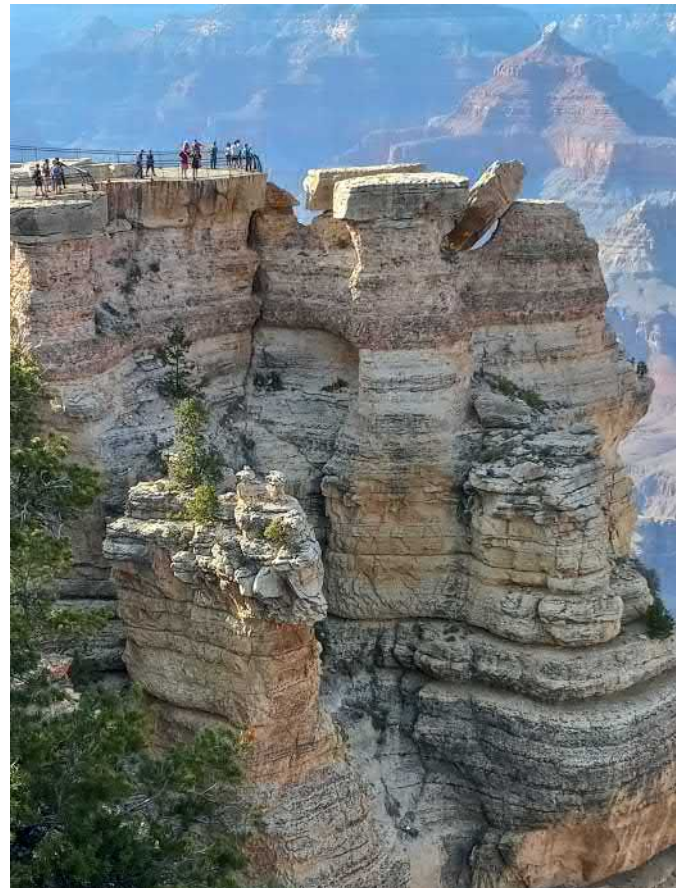

Can you believe we are already in August? I hope all of you have had an opportunity to take a vacation enjoying again nature and family. I just returned from spending time with my sister in Las Vegas. Then I visited The Grand Canyon, which kept me in awe and made me feel like a tiny seed in the middle of such grandiosity, as shown in my photo on the right.

I also spent a week at the shore with my family, where we enjoyed a truly relaxing time practicing simple family fun. I am looking forward to being at Villa Roma in October. Will I see you there? I hope so.

The Board and the committees in charge are wrapping up all the LICS events for 2022. Please mark your calendars accordingly and make your reservations early so that the proper planning can be done. Especially know that the Christmas party location will accommodate only 80 guests, due to the Covid restrictions. As they say: "first come, first served".

I am looking forward to seeing all of you at our events. Be a friend to each other and invite a new friend to LICS.

A presto, Nella Seward

Article 5: Via Garibaldi

As mentioned in an earlier article, you will find 5,472 streets with the name of Via Garibaldi. Giuseppe Maria Garibaldi was born July 4, 1807, in Nice, French Empire, now in France. He died June 2, 1882, in Caprera, Italy. He was an Italian patriot and soldier of the Risorgimento, a republican who, through his conquest of Sicily and Naples with his guerrilla Redshirts, contributed to the unification of Italy under the royal House of Savoy. As a result of his efforts, he actually received an offer from Abraham Lincoln to a Civil War Commission.

He is considered one of the greatest generals of modern times and one of Italy's "fathers of the fatherland" along with Camillo Benso, Count of Cavour, Victor Emmanuel II of Italy and Giuseppe Mazzini. Garibaldi is also known as the "Hero of the Two Worlds" because of his military enterprises in South America and Europe.

He was a sailor in his early years. In 1832 he acquired a master's certificate as a merchant captain. By 1833–34, when he served in the navy of the kingdom of Piedmont-Sardinia, he came under the influence of Giuseppe Mazzini, the great prophet of Italian nationalism, and the French socialist thinker, the Comte de Saint-Simon. Garibaldi, in 1834, took part in a mutiny intended to provoke a republican revolution in Piedmont but the plot failed; he escaped to France and in his absence was condemned to death by a Genoese court.

From 1836 to 1848, Garibaldi lived in South America as an exile, and these years of turmoil and revolution in that continent strongly influenced his career. In 1842 he was put in charge of the Uruguayan navy in a war of liberation and the following year he took command of a newly formed Italian Legion at Montevideo, the first of the Redshirts, with whom his name became so closely associated. After he won a small but heroic engagement at the Battle of Sant' Antonio in 1846, his fame reached even to Europe, and in Italy a sword of honour, paid for by subscriptions, was donated to him.

His South American experiences gave him invaluable training in the techniques of guerrilla warfare, unknown to European military. These first exploits in the cause of freedom cast him in the mold of a professional rebel, an indomitable individualist who all his life continued to wear the gaucho costume of the pampas and to act as if life were a perpetual battle for liberty. Upon his return to Italy, Garibaldi commanded and fought in military campaigns that eventually led to Italian unification. The provisional government of Milan made him a general and the Minister of War promoted him to General of the Roman Republic in 1849. When the war of independence broke out in April 1859, he led his Hunters of the Alps in the capture of major cities in Lombardy and reached the frontier of South Tyrol. The war ended with the acquisition of Lombardy. The following year, he led the Expedition of the Thousand on behalf of and with the consent of Victor Emmanuel II. The expedition was a success and concluded with the annexation of Sicily, Southern Italy, Marche and Umbria to the Kingdom of Sardinia before the creation of a unified Kingdom of Italy on 17 March 1861. His last military campaign took place during the Franco-Prussian War as commander of the Army of the Vosges.

Garibaldi became an international figurehead for national independence and republican ideals, and is considered by the twentieth-century historiography and popular culture as Italy's greatest national hero. He was showered with admiration and praise by many intellectuals and political figures. Historian A. J. P. Taylor called him "the only wholly admirable figure in modern history".

Giuseppe Garibaldi

Did You Know - By the mid-1860s, the English were truly enraptured with Garibaldi. While the upper classes competed for the opportunity to meet Garibaldi during his visit, the middle and working classes expressed their admiration for the General by adorning their walls and mantelpieces with his image.
